1. The indicated allowability of claims 19, 20, 23 and 24 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to SPAUR et al. in view of QUICK, Jr.. Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.
2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 19, 20, 23 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over SPAUR et al. in U.S. Patent No. 6,122,514 (newly cited) in view of QUICK, Jr. (of record).

Regarding claims 19, 20, 23 and 24, SPAUR et al. discloses a method and apparatus for transmitting message in a data communication network by receiving at least one distribution parameter and at least one characteristic of a message; choosing one channel among a plurality of available network channels, providing the choosing being based at least in part on a relation between the at least one characteristic and the at least one distribution parameter; transmitting the message over the chosen channel (see col. 2, lines 3-14, 24-4657-64, col. 4, lines 37-49).

SPAUR et al. differs from the claims, in that, it does not disclose the selection of channel is among at least a basic channel and a reserved access channel, which is well known in the art and commonly used in data communications field for channel reservation purpose.

QUICK, Jr., for example, from the similar field of endeavor, teaches the selection of a channel among at least a basic channel (204, 208) and a reserved access channel (214) based on bandwidth demand comparing to threshold(s), which can be easily adopted by one of ordinary skill in the art into the method and apparatus of SPAUR et al., to provide channel reservation for data transfer to maximize the bandwidth allocation to further improve the system efficiency.

4. Claims 1, 3, 4, 6, 7, 9, 10, 12, 13, 15, 16, 18 are allowed.
5. Claims 21, 22, 25 and 26 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

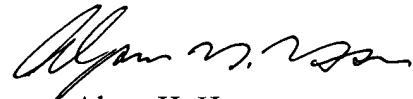

Tiedemann, Jr. et al., Whitehill et al., and Willenegger et al. are cited to show the common feature of time division multiple access system utilizing channel reservation scheme similar to the claimed invention.
